Tour Itinerary

Day 1

Our Entrepreneurial Grandmas Are Kicking Up Their Heels!

For those who visited our grandmas, your Grand Reunion gets off to a great start catching up on the latest with these mercurial grandmas you met previously.

Of course, these grandmas are transforming not only their own futures but that of their families. And you can see where they have progressed to from the previous time you spent with them. It's a time to reminisce with friends and for our guests who are meeting the grandmas for the first time, an introduction to grandmas who are overcoming some incredible hurdles. Their stories are inspiring.

All in all, a celebration of coming back together. There will good healthy food, a lot of singing and dancing with a Kenyan welcome that you will never forget.

Day 2

Your Maasai Friends Are Waiting

For those who came down to our Maasai community previously it will be a great celebration to catch up with old friends. And for those who are experiencing it for the first time, you will get fascinating insights about how to escape a marauding buffalo, how to throw a club to transition to adulthood and how to quickly climb a tree! It's a lot of fun.

Over the last 3 years the impact of drought has created challenging conditions for our Maasai community. But with their great sense of humour and inquisitiveness your Maasai are delighted to be able to welcome you back.

Once again, it's a time for a lot of singing and dancing, being dressed up like a Maasai and enjoying the company of 3 generations of the family of your hosts.

Day 3

Women Taking Their Place Again

For those guests that visited our women's centre, you have told us about how emotional the visit was. And now, to catch up with those women will probably be even more emotional. But that's what happens when you meet old friends. So be prepared!

For those friends of our who will be visiting the women's centre for the first time, it's for young mothers who are raising a family's whilst at the same time gaining new vocational skills.

The skills program conducted at the centre equips the women to be able to earn a living so that they can support their families. It's been a tough road to this point but the vocational centre is a place of hope, hard work and inspiration. You will be inspired!

Day 4

Future Leaders and the Next Generation

On Day 4, you will be visiting our centre for families where a food kitchen is established for the very young. The centre acts as part of a support system that helps families through the neediest of times.

And an essential part of that is providing meals for young children who need additional nutritional support. And for our guests who have been to the centre previously, it's a time to catch up with everyone and to see how they are faring. For those guests who will be visiting the centre for the first time, it's a place where you can get involved in helping prepare the food and to feed the very young.

No place is more touching as this one. And it is so because we can all put ourselves in the situation of what would happen if we couldn't feed our own families. But through all this, this day is full of enjoyment and satisfaction for everybody involved.

Day 5

Lunch with Mama Carole and a Party to End all Parties

Today is the final day of your incredible journey in Kenya with us. And to make you last day memorable, we are getting together a large group for a party to say thank you and goodbye. In every society, cooking and culture are inextricably linked. Within Kenyan communities, the rhythm of life is influenced by the seasons and what is grown in local gardens throughout the year. It is the freshness and home-grown nature of the produce that results in some of the healthiest food available in any country of the world. And hence we will enjoy a Kenyan banquet.

All the People You Met Will Come to the Party

The party group will be made up of some of the amazing people you have met from the group of grandmothers, women, Maasai, youth and assorted staff that you have spent your days with.

An Image and Video Review

We will review your week in images and hand you up to 150 images and videos that we took for you. The food will be great and we can guarantee a lot of singing and dancing. It will be the perfect Kenyan party to say, "thank you and farewell".

Singing and Dancing Galore

This is a day to relax and enjoy food grown in the garden within Carole's home. A great way to end this incredible week.
